

Executive Summary

Good morning,

The current status of the scottyab/rootbeer project is progressing well. We are currently standing at approximately 180 unique files with 32 authors over the span of 340 weeks. Grubeli and Scott Alexander-Brown stand out the most and have been performing exceptionally. They have contributed to more than 100 files combined throughout the project's lifetime. I gathered this information through a couple git commands, such as git log. It also revealed that Aippisch has not been performing as expected, as well as Vyas and Leocadiotine. These three have made little contribution and should be met with to discuss productivity levels. I've attached a copy of the team's contributions in the scatter plot below. Please let me know if you have any further questions I can assist with.

Thank you,

Amy W.
